Washington, DC - Americans for Safe Access (ASA) and CannaKeys are partnering together to help broaden access to cannabis research and demystify the science of cannabis to support improved patient outcomes. As part of this partnership, all ASA members will receive a 30% discount on the CannaKeys 360 platform. In addition, ASA and CannaKeys will be working together on educational activities to help accelerate the use and safe adoption of cannabinoid therapeutics.

The CannaKeys 360° platform provides easy access to published science, aggregated critical data points, and guidance to practitioners and patients. CannaKeys provides over 3,500 cannabis related studies across 240+ medical conditions. ASA will be utilizing the CannaKeys platform to help provide data and scientific references to their numerous educational materials, reports, and federal and state comments that they create throughout the year to advance medical cannabis policy and acceptance for cannabis as a medicine.

"Being able to have immediate access to evidence-based research will help us inform policy recommendations that improve policies for patients," said Debbie Churgai, executive director of ASA. "Healthcare workers, researchers, educators, policymakers, businesses and cannabis patients and consumers can all greatly benefit from access to this extensive and growing database. ASA is excited to broaden access to this important resource to all our members."

"Americans for Safe Access (ASA) has been dedicated to advocating for patient access and working to improve the regulatory landscape of cannabis healthcare for nearly two decades. CannaKeys is thrilled to be working with ASA to increase the pace of change and support their ongoing work by providing platforms that quickly aggregates the science of cannabis and supports improved patient outcomes," said Douglas Reil, co-founder and CEO of CannaKeys.
